Embrace Nature's Serenity

Discover Purulia's Eco-Tourism Haven

Hailing from a naxal infested district of Purulia, West Bengal, Naresh Kumar Agarwal always envisioned to transform Purulia through innovative social entrepreneurship which would allow creation of jobs and skill development of the local underdeveloped tribal population.

been the biggest beneficiary of the project encompassing to generation of more than 300 direct jobs and thousands indirect stakeholders in the project.

While developing the project, Agarwal remained conscious of the ecological sensitivities of the tribal region and its population where the total developed area of Kushal Palli consists of 60% green cover and only 45% of the built up area is done on permanent construction. The rest is built using sustainable woods and modular structure imported from different regions.

Agarwal's efforts have garnered numerous accolades in India and abroad, where he had the privileged of being awarded by Dr APJ Abdul Kalam for his industrial endeavours in the backward district of Purulia, and being awarded as outstanding Indian of the year award in London at its House of Lords. It has also garnered Certificate of Times Business Award-2019 in the category of hospitality destination at the Times Business Award.
